COVID-19 Spring Protocols

Bryn Athyn College has moved to optional indoor masking during the spring term. But as we continue to see a rise in the COVID-19 cases in our county it is important to work together to protect the college community. Please remember that the following mitigation measures could change if there is an increase in infection rates, either in the county or on campus.

Self-Monitoring

Currently, all employees are expected to self-monitor for symptoms of COVID-19 and work with their personal medical provider, supervisor, and the Human Resources Office, if symptomatic.

Notifying your supervisor of a close contact or positive test as soon as possible and will assist us in controlling the spread of covid 19. Symptomatic employees will be expected to provide the Director of Human Resources with a return to work note from their physician before returning to campus.

Quarantine and isolation procedures

We will continue to follow the CDC's recommended best practices for quarantine and isolation for those who have been deemed a close contact or have tested positive.

Courtesy, and what to do when you are symptomatic
